There are so many things out there on the market, it would take you a lifetime to try everything on the market before figuring out what works for you. But knowing your hair type is the first step into finding out what works for you. And keeping in mind that so much impacts the way your hair will behave. The weather, your diet, and the amount of heat you allow your hair to undergo. So it is very important to treat your scalp, condition your hair, and make sure the ingredients in all your products compliment your healthy hair goals. ## SHOW YOUR SKIN SOME LOVE

Skin like your hair is affected by your environment, your diet, and the products you use or have access to. Again it is important you read the ingredients of everything you attempt to put on your body. Fragrance, chemicals, preservatives, all play a role on the way you consume products. Then you add to it how things are marketed to you the consumer, that has an effect on what you buy. So it is not enough to simply buy the most recognizable brands that are marketed to you regularly. It is important to read the labels, and find out what each product is suppose to do and make sure with your doctor you are not allergic to anything in those ingredients. It is also important for you to make sure you are taking proper notes on what products you are using so that if there are any reactions it will be fairly simple for you to pinpoint exactly which product can be the cause of any sudden reactions. Body products that works and what we feel is worth trying are shown here for your pleasure.

You will need to know what products are good for dry skin, oily, and combination, for every area of your body.
